A few of the performers you'll see tonight...

Michael Rosman

Michael Rosman is a physical comedian—AKA a comedy juggler. He is a full-time professional entertainer with success in many aspects of show business. His talent, professionalism and ethics are widely known and respected by his peers, clients, and fellow performers.

Michael has excelled in well-known performance markets: corporate banquets, cruise ships, fairs and festivals, and colleges and universities. In 1999, he founded Laughter Arts Foundation, a 501(c)3 nonprofit, to produce the professional development conferences for high level entertainers known as MotionFest and MiniFest. Corporations, First Nights, theme parks, event planners and individuals regularly seek him out for his consulting services. www.michaelrosman.com

Jen Slaw

Jen Slaw has performed since 1991, and she was the 2002 International Jugglers' Association's Three Ball Champion. Blending graceful movements with juggling, Jen has performed throughout the US. Jen teaches private and group juggling and circus arts classes to students of all ages. She has taught with the Big Apple Circus and directs her own Summer Circus Arts Camp for kids. She even taught Captain Chesley "Sully" Sullenberger to juggle! Jen is a graduate of Swarthmore College with degrees in art and engineering. She currently lives in Nutley, NJ.

Jim Mackenzie

Jim learned to juggle by the age of 7, but he had no act. He began his professional juggling career at the Houston Festival in 1986 and, as evidenced by the tip in his hat, he still had no act. He has since learned how to entertain audiences of all ages at such varied places as the Texas Renaissance Festival, Six Flags theme parks, Las Vegas Comedy Festival, and colleges across the country; he has appeared on Last Comic Standing; and he recently served as Director of Clowning with The Houston Grand Opera. But his greatest achievement is keeping an audience laughing—so they won't realize he still has no act. www.jimmackenzie.com
